

Industry Leaders Join Forces to Advance Infrastructure

Portland, Ore. – May 1, 2006 – When David Evans and Associates, Inc. sought to broaden its services to include construction management, it looked for a match of values, philosophy and vision and found that match in Ted Aadland.

Aadland and Evans recognized that traditional delivery methods like design-bid-build and even alternative delivery methods such as design-build still leave some clients needs unmet. Bringing old mental models to new approaches still delivers the same old thing. They sought to transform the traditional owner-engineer-contractor relationship into something new, a transformative collaboration - from engineer and contractor to trusted advisors.

From that came Aadland Evans Constructors, Inc.
